SIMILE , METAPHOR ,
PERSONIFICATION , IDIOMS , EUPHEMISM ,ALLEGORY

Our Learning Journey

Today we are going to become word detectives! We will learn how to:

- Identify and use similes and metaphors.
- Give life to objects with personification.
- Crack the code of idioms and euphemisms.
- Discover the hidden meanings in allegories.

The Writer's Toolbox

Figurative -
Words used beyond their literal meaning to create special effects.

Comparison - Highlighting how two different things are similar in clever ways.

Imagery - Language creating vivid mental pictures using the five senses.

Symbolism - Using objects or people to represent bigger ideas, like peace.

Is the Moon a Face?

What if we didn't just say things exactly as they are?

Imagine saying 'The moon is a giant wheel of cheese' instead of 'The moon is round'. Which one is more fun to imagine?

Figurative language makes our writing vivid, exciting, and unpredictable!

Similes: The 'Like' or 'As' Tool

A simile compares two things using the words 'like' or 'as'.

It's like a bridge connecting two different ideas to show us something new.

Example

He was as brave as a lion.

Her eyes sparkled like diamonds.

Metaphors: Direct Connections

A metaphor is bolder than a simile. It doesn't say something is like another thing; it says it IS another thing!

Key point

Metaphors help us feel the emotion or intensity of a description immediately.

Example: 'The classroom was a zoo!' (It wasn't actually full of animals, but it felt just as chaotic!)

Simile or Metaphor?

Answers on the next slide...

Which of these is a metaphor?

1. The snow was a white blanket.

2. The snow was as white as a sheet.

3. The snow fell silently.

4. The snow felt like cold dust.

1.

The snow was a white blanket.

2.

The snow was as white as a sheet.

3.

The snow fell silently.

4.

The snow felt like cold dust.

Personification

Giving Life to Objects

Personification is when we give human qualities, feelings, or actions to non-human things.

- The wind howled in the night.
- The ancient car groaned as it started.

Fun fact

Writers use this to make us feel empathy for objects or to set a specific mood.

What are Idioms?

An idiom is a phrase where the meaning can't be understood just by looking at the individual words.

If you say someone has 'cold feet', it doesn't mean they need socks—it means they are nervous!

Remember

Idioms are often specific to certain cultures or languages.

Match the Idiom

1.

Piece of cake

a) Something very easy to do.

2.

Once in a blue moon

b) Feeling sick or unwell.

3.

Break a leg

c) A way to wish someone good luck.

4.

Under the weather

d) Something that happens very rarely.

Learning with Video

Let's watch a quick guide to how these figures of speech work in real stories!

Euphemisms: Softening the Blow

A euphemism is a polite or mild word used instead of one that might be found offensive or unpleasant.

Instead of saying someone was fired, we might say they were 'let go'.

Example

Using 'passed away' instead of 'died' is a common euphemism.

1 Personification (the sun beating down).

2 The sea was a giant mirror.

3 The long sleep.

4 A Change of Heart.

Allegory: The Big Picture

An allegory is a whole story where the characters and events are symbols that stand for ideas about life, politics, or history.

It's like a story with a 'secret' secondary meaning hidden underneath the surface.

Example

The Tortoise and the Hare is an allegory about how persistence is better than talent alone.

Why Use Allegory?

Writers use allegories to teach difficult lessons or critique society in a way that is easier to understand or safer to say.

Can you think of a story?

Have you ever read a book where animals acted like humans to show how people behave?

Checking Allegories

An allegory is just a short sentence that compares two things.

TRUE

FALSE

Now it's time to explain why...

Checking Allegories

An allegory is just a short sentence that compares two things.

Why is that?

- a) Comparing two things in one sentence is called a simile or metaphor.
- b) An allegory is an entire story that carries a symbolic meaning.

Devices in Review

Authors use these devices in reviews to make opinions persuasive.

Personification Practice

Let's try to personify the ocean!

Instead of: 'The waves hit the sand.'

Try using human verbs like:

- 'The waves danced across the sand.'
- 'The ocean hugged the shore.'
- 'The sea roared in anger.'

Vocabulary Recall

A ____ is a comparison using 'like' or 'as', while a ____ says something IS something else. Giving human traits to a toaster is ____.

The Power of Symbolism

In an allegory, symbols are everywhere. A dark forest might represent confusion or danger, while a bright light might represent truth.

Key point

Look for patterns. If a character is always followed by a black crow, what might that symbolise?

Euphemisms in Everyday Life

Euphemisms make speech polite and avoid discomfort.

- 1 Between jobs - Replaces unemployed.
- 2 Economical with truth - Replaces lying.
- 3 Senior citizen - Replaces old.

Spot the Device

Look at these sentences and identify the figurative language being used.

The stars winked at me
from the velvet sky.

Final Review: Word Magic

Why do you think authors choose to use metaphors or idioms instead of just saying exactly what they mean?

Final Review: Word Magic

You might have said...

It creates a vivid picture in the reader's mind.

It expresses complex emotions literal words can't.

It makes writing more engaging and poetic.

Well Done, Word Smiths!

You've mastered the tools of figurative language.

Next time you read a story or watch a movie, see how many of these you can spot. Your writing will never be the same again!

Remember

Keep practicing your similes and metaphors—they are the spices of great writing!
